GARY WESTERBERG AND NIGEL WRIGHT NAMED TO INTERNATIONAL WHO'S WHO OF AVIATION LAWYERS

(CHICAGO/ATLANTA) April 10, 2008 – Two Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell LLP Partners have been named to The International Who's Who of Aviation Lawyers 2008. Gary W. Westerberg, based in the Firm's Chicago office, and Nigel Wright, based in the Firm's Atlanta office, are recognized among a select group of international leaders in the aviation field.

Westerberg's focus is in the defense of aircraft product manufacturers, airlines, general aviation operators and representation of insurers in complex coverage issues. A commercial pilot and aircraft owner himself, Westerberg understands the aviation industry from all angles and has more than 30 years experience in this practice area. He has handled a number of high profile cases throughout his career, including those connected to major air crashes and events of Sept. 11, 2001.

Wright began his law career in the United Kingdom and has experience in international dispute resolution in more than 50 jurisdictions. His focus on arbitration, international law, aviation and product liability have put him at the forefront of several major cases, with a special emphasis on aviation liability claims on behalf of insurers in Latin America and the Caribbean.

Who's Who Legal identifies international leaders in nearly 30 areas of business law through client and peer recommendations and referrals and acts as a reference source for corporations.
