Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell Houston Partner Named to the Advisory Board of University of Texas Publication

(HOUSTON) August 13, 2008 – David Patton, a Partner based in the Houston office of Locke Lord Bissell & Liddell and Chair of the Firm's Energy Practice Group, has been named to the Advisory Board of the Texas Journal of Oil, Gas and Energy Law, which is published twice a year by students at the University of Texas School of Law and is widely circulated to the oil, gas and energy legal communities. The Advisory Board assists the Journal staff in creating a publication that appeals to a variety of constituencies while helping the Journal to accomplish its mission of serving as a training ground for a new generation of oil, gas and energy attorneys. The Journal publishes relevant and timely articles that contribute to the field. Patton looks forward to helping enhance the interaction between the Journal staff and those currently involved in energy law.

Patton has more than 30 years of experience in various legal aspects of the oil and gas industry, including acquisitions and sales of assets or equity interests and the drafting and negotiation of leases, contracts and agreements related to field, pipeline and plant operations. Patton has represented clients in connection with surface use conflicts, day to day exploration and development activities, and the resolution of oil and gas disputes. He is a frequent speaker on oil and gas issues. Patton received his law degree from the University of Houston Law Center, and his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Texas at Austin.
